LRWA III - Appellate Writing

Welcome to Appellate Writing. In this two-credit course, you will refine your persuasive writing skills by writing two appellate briefs. The course focuses on the selection and construction of effective legal arguments in the appellate context. We expect you to behave professionally, demonstrating responsibility and initiative in your class sessions, individual meetings, and written assignments. Please carefully read this syllabus and the Appellate Writing Rules.

At the conclusion of this course, you should:

- understand the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure and First Circuit Local Rules for appealing a federal case;
- write appellate briefs that comply with the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure and First Circuit Local Rules;
- effectively research and think critically about legal issues;
- effectively frame legal arguments in the appellate context;
- understand and recognize various advanced persuasive writing techniques;
- apply advanced persuasive writing techniques in writing appellate briefs; and
- effectively critique and edit your own work and the work of others.

Class Logistics

All sections will meet in person, although some individual meetings may be carried out virtually. All sections will cover the same material. All students are responsible for completing all assignments. The chart on page 4 lists each section and its meeting day and time.

We are fortunate to have dedicated and experienced practicing attorneys who care about training young lawyers give their time to teach you. Please respect their time and keep in mind that, due to professional or family commitments, they may not always be available to respond immediately to your email or phone call. Allow one business day for a reply.

Textbook and Out-of-Class Assignments

The required textbook for this course is Joan M. Rocklin et al., An Advocate Persuades (Carolina Academic Press 2016) (First Edition), which you should already have from your LRWA II class. You also need the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure and the First Circuit Local Rules, both of which are available for free online. Finally, you are expected to follow the Bluebook citation rules for practitioners in your written work product.

The course calendar in this syllabus lists assigned reading and other out-of-class requirements for each week for all sections. Individual professors may assign additional reading, videos, or out-of-class activities. You are expected to complete each assignment in advance of the class for which it is assigned unless instructed otherwise by your professor.

TWEN

Please register on TWEN for both LRWA III Appellate Writing (All Students), and your section's TWEN page ("LRWA III Appellate Writing ([Professor Name])"). You are responsible for knowing all information posted on the two TWEN pages throughout the semester. You may not join the TWEN page of a section that is not yours. Your section's TWEN page is where you will contribute to online discussion, take quizzes, and submit assignments. It is also where your professor will communicate with you regarding requirements specific to your section.

Restrictions on Collaboration

All written projects this semester are individual projects. You may not request or accept editing or proofreading assistance from any person except at the express direction of your professor or the director of the program. However, you may freely discuss with others the record in the case, legal research techniques and results, caselaw, statutes, secondary sources, and how the law applies to the facts of our case. The legal substance of the assignments is fair game for discussion – and discussion is encouraged – but your written work product must be yours alone.

Time Management

Fall of your second year can be extremely busy with extracurricular activities, job interviews, moot court or trial advocacy competitions, journal responsibilities, and internship responsibilities added to the commitments you juggled during your first year. Pace yourself and manage your time so that you are not completing major assignments at the last minute.

Written Assignment Requirements

During this semester you will work as appellate attorneys on a single case, first as counsel for appellants and then as counsel for appellees. You will start by conducting legal research and reporting your results to your professor either in class, in small groups, or in one-on-one meetings. You will then draft specific portions of the appellants' brief which you will incorporate into a full appellants' brief. Your final project will be to write a full appellees' brief.

For each written project, you must submit a Microsoft Word (.doc/.docx) file conforming to all requirements of the project memo. Each must include the following information, centered as a header on a single line on every page, using the same font as the body of your project: [Semester Identification] [Instructor Name] [Project Number] [AGN]. For example, a student submitting Project 5 in Professor Driscoll's section would use the following header:

Fall 2022 Driscoll P5 637A92V

For projects submitted without AGNs, use your last name in place of the AGN.

For all written submissions, use this same header text to name your file in Word. All written submissions must contain page numbers on each page in the same font as the body of the project.

Grading

Some projects are graded on an "Expanded Pass/Fail" basis. All others are graded on a six-point scale, for which you will use Anonymous Grading Numbers (AGNs). AGNs must be exactly seven characters, must not form a discernable word or phrase, and must not form a discernable pattern when viewed in combination with your other AGNs. You must create and submit your AGNs for all projects using the link provided on the All Students TWEN page before 6:00 pm on Friday, September 9.

You will also be graded on your professionalism throughout the semester. The professionalism evaluation includes: your completion of and performance on in-class or out-of-class assignments and course projects; indices of preparation, attention, and focus during class and in your written work product; and interaction with classmates and your professor during class. It also includes your interactions with your professor or the director of the program outside of class. The chart below lists the various graded aspects of this course.
