COURSE DESCRIPTION

This seminar offers an examination of litigation, legislation and regulatory efforts on behalf of animals at the local, state, and national level. The course will address the historical status of animals in the law; the current application of laws to captive animals, wildlife, and farm and other domesticated animals; legislative efforts and citizen initiatives to strengthen animal protection laws; the role of international treaties and agreements concerning trade in animals and animal products; and the limitations on implementation and enforcement of animal protection laws. Emerging areas of animal law, and the impacts of free speech, religious expression, and other constitutional protections for animal protection advocates and animal use industries will be explored. The course will also address legal constraints on animal advocacy, and the movement to obtain legal recognition of the rights of animals.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course students should have acquired/be able to:

- Understand the interests of animal use industries and animal protection advocates
- Identify historical precedents, current issues, and common causes of action in animal law
- Evaluate and think strategically through the benefits and negative outcomes of a legal action, advance public interest causes and/or changes in the law
- Develop an original thesis and support it with legal research and persuasive writing

Thurs. 4:00 – 6:00 pm EST | Final Exam: N/A

GRADING & PARTICIPATION

Students will receive a single final course grade based upon a completed final research paper. Because this is a seminar, class attendance and participation are an important component of a successful course, and students are expected to be prepared for substantive discussions of the assigned material. Pursuant to George Mason Law School policy, final grades may be adjusted up or down by a single increment (e.g., from a B+ to an A-) based upon participation.

Final Paper Content and Deadline

The final paper may be written on any topic in animal law. Law student papers typically identify a specific, unresolved legal problem and offer a solution, but they can also present ideas for new doctrinal frameworks, approaches, or developments. This is a scholarly writing—the student’s own analysis and conclusions should be thoroughly developed in the paper. The paper should be well-researched and include scholarly and legal sources that are properly attributed and cited. Those authorities should substantiate the student’s arguments, but the paper should present the student’s own perspective. A successful paper thoroughly defines the issue to be analyzed, recognizes structural, policy, political and other implications of the matter, and persuasively argues the author’s perspective while addressing any obvious contrary arguments. No generative AI product is permitted to be used.

Proposed paper topics are due on or before March 20, 2025, and outlines must be submitted on or before April 3, 2025. We encourage you to check in with us during the course to ensure that you are working towards a quality end product.

Final research papers are due on or before May 1, 2025 and should be at least 20 pages of typed, double-spaced text, with one-inch margins and no less than 12-point type. All papers must be paginated at the bottom of each page, and sources must be cited in footnotes rather than end notes. Please put your name at the top of the first page.

Faculty may not grant extensions of the deadline for final papers beyond the last date of the exam period, and all authority in this matter is delegated to the Assistant Dean, Student Academic Affairs. Requests and reasons for needing a deadline extension must be presented, with appropriate documentation, to the Assistant Dean, Academic Affairs.

Class Recordings Prohibited

Pursuant to Academic Regulation 4-2.2, no portion of a class session or an examination may be preserved by means of any an audio or video recording device. Any exceptions to this policy must be expressly permitted in writing by both Professors Cary and Robinson.

Class Prep Assignments

This syllabus sets forth the basic reading assignments for each class session. The syllabus will likely be supplemented each week with additional materials as animal law is a rapidly evolving subject area. Every effort will be made to discuss the topics and assignments as indicated in the syllabus. However, exact dates for discussion of particular assignments may change as the semester progresses, and there may be occasions where the subject from one class will carry over to the next. Students will receive advance notice of any variance from the schedule in the syllabus.
